Reasons for Allowance

The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: Applicants' method for substantially reducing the water concentration in a fluorination process is unobvious over the prior art of record. Although the closest prior art of record (Nappa US Pat. 5,091,168) teaches the removal of water from a fluorination process the prior art of record does not teach or suggest removing the water from a composition, which results from a fluorination process, containing a reactive organic compound, a fluorination agent and water. The closest prior art fluorination process involves the preparation of anhydrous inorganic compounds (i.e., niobium or tantalum pentafluoride) by removing water with a water reactive agent such as phosgene, thionyl chloride or sulfuryl chloride (carbonyl or thionyl compounds encompassed by formula I of the present claims). There is no reactive organic compound contained in the reaction mixture of the Nappa fluorination process. Thus, it would not have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art to use the water reactive agents, as taught in the Nappa fluorination process, to substantially reduce the water concentration in a fluorination process, wherein, inter alia, a reactive organic compound is present. It would not have been apparent to one having ordinary skill in the art that water reactive agents, such as phosgene, thionyl chloride or sulfuryl chloride, would not react with any reactive organic compound(s) contained in the fluorination composition mixture (before or after fluorination) considering that reactive agents such as phosgene, thionyl chloride or sulfuryl chloride can potentially react with reactive organic compounds which may result in not substantially reducing the water contained in the reaction mixture. All claims (1-21) are allowed.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
